City of Trinidad and the Las Animas River Valley Badly Damaged.

LOSS IS ESTIMATED AT A MILLION

Hotel and Depot Are Swept Away--Portions of the Residence Section Are Also Wrecked by the Angry Waters.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.]
Trinidad, Colo., Oct. 1.—A terrific flood struck the city of Trinidad and the whole valley along the Las Animas river, devastating a wide section and causing a money loss which at present cannot be estimated, but which will reach $1,000,000. So far as known there was no loss of life, but several are reported missing.

Every bridge in the city of Trinidad is out. The Santa Fe station is demolished, all of the railroads are tied up and the telephone and telegraphic services completely suspended. More than thirty city blocks in the residence and business portions were from two to four feet under water along the river.

Heavy Rains Cause Flood.

The flood was caused by the heavy rain which has been falling for two days. At 8 o'clock Thursday night the storm assumed cloudburst proportions and at 2 o'clock Friday morning the Las Animas river went over its banks. At 3:30 it was impossible to get within a block of the river bed at any point and Commercial street was flooded for three blocks in the heart of the business district.

Meantime the electric light and gas plants had been flooded and the city was in complete darkness. Hundreds of citizens thronged the streets on the edge of the flooded district.

carry on all their best to provide shelter for those driven from their homes.

Sound Alarm of Danger.

When the river left its banks, warning of the flood was given by revolver shots and the ringing of the fire alarm, followed by the blowing of all the locomotives and shop whistles in town. Citizens, upon rafts made of sections of sidewalks, paddled through the streets rescuing families which were in danger.

The new Baca hotel, a two-story structure just nearing completion at a cost of $20,000 on the river bank, was destroyed. The water then into its way through fifty feet of ground to the Santa Fe depot, which was carried away. The Cardenas hotel, adjoining, barely escaped a similar fate. The Rio Grande bridge at El Moro is out and the Santa Fe right of way in many places has been washed out. Railroad traffic is entirely suspended and business here is paralyzed.

Traffic Is Tied Up.

Santa Fe, N. M., Oct. 1.—Railroad traffic in New Mexico is at a standstill owing to heavy rains. Every one of the three railroads centering at Santa Fe is washed out. No trains have arrived since Thursday afternoon and all the wires are down. No loss of life is reported, but property damage throughout the territory is heavy.

NEWPORT DOGS DINE AT HOME OF HARRY LEHR

Pet of Society Leader's Wife Invites Seven Well-Bred Canines to Celebrate His Birthday.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 1.—The waning season has become frightfully dull. Even the dogs of the fashionable set were yawning, full of ennui. So Harry Lehr hit on the brilliant plan of celebrating the third birthday of Mrs. Lehr's small Pomeranian dog, Mighty Atom. So Mighty Atom Friday invited to dinner seven dogs of equal breeding and good manners.

Of course, Mrs. Lehr's Pomeranian graced the head of the table. The seven were placed in high chairs, and behind them were seated their mistresses, who were assisted by five butlers in serving the delicate menu. Real outlets formed the first course. The dish was delightful. So frankfurters were served next. At last came salads, ice cream and chocolate.

At last directly to honor the host, a birthday cake was brought in. On it was delicately frosted the following inscription:

"Mighty Atom, the Pride of Arleigh; three years old."

Three lighted candles illuminated it. Cigarettes were on the table, but the dogs have not yet been educated down to them, and they soon sought the splendid drawing room. There their good breeding even could not hide the fact that they were bored. So Mr. Lehr hit upon a splendid scheme to enliven the scene.

Several cats of nature not too brutal were introduced into the drawing room. Mighty Atom and his friends enjoyed themselves hugely chasing the cats under sofas and over chairs, until the dogs' owners feared their treasures might exhaust themselves. Then carriages were called and the entertainment, which was one of the season's greatest successes, ended.

CARGILL BEQUEST NOT YET MADE

Premature Announcement of Morning Paper May Defeat the Proposed Gift.

The premature announcement in the morning paper that the Central M. E. church was to be remembered by Mr. Wm. Cargill of La Crosse, with a $10,000 donation for the new church building, may defeat the project. Mr. Cargill, several months ago expressed a desire to do something for the church with which his father was long associated, but no definite promise has been made, and the church did not feel warranted in making the matter public.

There is a certain class of news which while legitimate is sometimes withheld as a matter of accommodation to the parties interested. The new church site and the item under discussion belong to this class. The Central M. E. church has long been looking for church building lots, and as a result every available piece of property on the west side of the river has been advanced in price from 10 to 40 per cent, and this has occurred without the aid of newspaper publicity. It is to be hoped that the Central church may be favored with a handsome gift from Mr. Cargill and that the notoriety of a public announcement may not influence him unfavorably.

GENERAL TONE MUCH BETTER

More Workmen Are Employed Than a Year Ago--Big Concerns Have Reopened.

JOBGING IS WELL MAINTAINED

Transactions Show Gains in Western States--Heavy Orders From the Country Are Received by the Big Factories.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Trade conditions in the Chicago district are epitomized in the weekly review published by R. G. Dun & Co. as follows:

"Industrial conditions made an important advance toward a return to increased activity in production. On the reopening of harvester and car shops and an addition to the number of iron turners in blast, the manufacturing situation acquired more confidence in a favorable estimate of the business outlook."

"Dealings in the leading jobbing branches were well maintained and sales made good comparison with a year ago, gains appearing in general dry goods, wearing apparel and footwear. Country orders continued in considerable volume for staple merchandise and transactions reflect improvement in the demand for furniture, carpet, woolen and food products. Fall openings in fashionable lines have been well attended and encouraging progress was made in sales."

"Railroad traffic returns exhibit increased tonnage in the movement of manufactures and breadstuffs, although east-bound forwarding of grain and provisions is under that of a year ago. Lake receipts disclose an upward tendency in mine and forest products, lumber figures being 41, 152,000 feet, against 39, 430,000 for corresponding week last year. With the current industrial situation there has been much buying of raw materials at better prices than ruled one month ago, and the demand for building lumber is much stronger."

"Construction work promises to be quite active and this has imparted strength to all kinds of building material. Car builders are estimating on new needs and inquiries appear for locomotives, but there are few commitments for rails, although heavy requirements impend. Structural steel, merchant iron and wire products are in steady request, while prices throughout the metal divisions show firmness."

"Grain shipments decrease. Grain shipments, 4,098,639 bushels, are 20 per cent under those a year ago. Board of Trade operations were without special feature, aside from further increase in the demand for cash wheat and flour. Compared with the closings a week ago grain values are slightly lower, while some irregularity appears in provisions, prices being higher in lard and ribs, but unchanged in pork."

"Live stock receipts, 284,924 head, compared with 310,985 head a year ago. Choice hives were in fair shipping demand and sold up to the highest value in two months, but subsequently declined to last week's closing quotation."

"Failures reported in Chicago district number twenty-two, against twenty-four last week and thirty-seven a year ago."

SEEK TO DRIVE SALOON MAN TO SHUT HIS DOORS

Church Members Adopt Unique Method of Closing Liquor Place in Vicinity of House of Worship.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 1.—The Young People's society of the fashionable Lincoln Park Baptist church has started to sing and pray a saloon out of business. The saloon under ban is located near the church, and is annoying the young people of the church. The inmates of the saloon were frightened nearly to death when the Rev. R. G. Robbins and about forty of his flock knelt in front of the saloon and commenced singing Gospel hymns. At the first strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," those in the saloon, with visions of Carlo Nicoli, fled pell-mell from the house. Several other hymns were sung and prayers offered, and by the time they arrived at "Washed in the Blood" there was a crowd of several hundred people gathered about. The police then dispersed the singers, but they say they will close the saloon sooner or later.

How she came there is a mystery. The body was found only after members of her family had joined in an all day and night search for her and had gone over every foot of the woodland surrounding the home of her son-in-law, Henry D. Steers, with whom she had been spending the summer. She was a sufferer from apoplexy and is supposed to have fallen into the water after an attack.

CUBAN CIGAR MEN ARE ANGRY

Think Stamp Decision Unjust and May Brand Boxes "Made in Havana."

Havana, Oct. 1.—Cigar manufacturers here regard the decision of the United States treasury department in the cigar stamp case as unjust to Cuban interests. They see no reason for protecting manufacturers in the United States to the extent of removing the only conspicuous evidence that the contents of a box of cigars were imported. The decision having already been announced, it is doubtful whether the Cuban government will make representations on the subject to Washington. Manufacturers, however, may adopt the custom of conspicuously branding cigar boxes with the words, "Made in Havana."

OLD FOGY TALKS OF BOND SELLING

ALSO DISCUSSES THE SEWERAGE QUESTIONS AT LENGTH.

HE WANTS TO KNOW THINGS

Does Not Think the City Is Doing Right in Laying Eight-Inch Sewers.

To the Editor: In the starting of this letter I should like to say that if I am wrong in any of the facts that I may state I shall be most glad to be corrected. So much success and under the cover action has been indulged in that I have been unable to get at the real truths without revealing my identity and then I might not discover the facts I wish to know. Two years ago a revolution occurred in Janesville. The business men, men not hitherto prominent in politics, rose in their might and cleaned out the old council and old methods and installed new. The old adage, "A new broom sweep clean," is true and for a time the new broom swept exceedingly clean, but some way or other it seems to have been placed behind the door and is now covered with dust it should have cleaned. The city this summer is making improvements. A new bridge is being built and a sewerage system is being installed. It is on these two subjects I wish to speak.

The Bridge Bonds. I should like to know, should like to understand, just how it is that men appointed to attend to such matters allowed the issue of the nineteen thousand dollar bridge bonds to be disposed of to individuals when banks, banking firms, and one individual offered more than the amount they were sold for by the committee. The issue was sold at the face value with accrued interest, according to the wording of the ordinance that created them. I am informed that Harris & Company, of Chicago, bond experts; the Flower City bank and C. S. Jackson all made bids on the bonds slightly better than the price they were sold for. Their offers were refused and individuals were able to buy the bonds at their face value and accrued interest. It is said that the committee having the matter in charge thought that the people of the city who had saved a little sum of money and wanted a good investment would have the opportunity. Very good from a philanthropic standpoint but from a business standpoint very bad judgment.

Who Has Them? Who are these poor people who have saved a little sum of money who desired to invest in a safe security? The public is not yet informed. I talked with one business man recently and he told me he had known that the committee purposed to do what they had done, sell the bonds to individuals, he would have been glad to secure them himself or as large a part of them as he could. He made the statement that if the bonds were properly drawn up and would stand inspection of the big bond experts of the city he would have been able to have turned the whole nineteen thousand dollar issue over to a Chicago firm he knew of and have made five hundred dollars for his day's work. Five hundred dollars is five hundred dollars the world over. The city of Janesville is just as badly as any individual and if the bonds are held by individuals who are to speculate on them the city should have the preference of the speculation. Am I not right?

Need the Money. Five hundred dollars would help improve many of the streets sadly in need of repairs. Five hundred dollars would buy many new volumes for the city library it is in need of. Five hundred dollars would pay the salary of another policeman for eleven months. Five hundred dollars could do a hundred and one things that the city needs and has not. In my mind it is a deliberate gift of five hundred dollars to several persons who do not need it as much as does the city. If I do anyone an injustice I am sorry, but the facts remain the bonds have been sold to private individuals for five hundred dollars less than the city should have received for them. This I have an authority of a gentleman who deals in bonds and knows their value. The committee acted within the letter of the law. They have not violated the ordinance but the city has lost the money.

The Sewerage. Now I come beyond my depths. I start to discuss a subject which I can repeat by hearsay not by actual knowledge of what really is happening. I am not a civil engineer nor a student of sewerage systems, but common sense mixed with a few hints I hope will carry me through the censorship of the present work being done on the streets in laying the new sewerage pipes. I will admit at the outset I am puzzled as to how the city engineer expects an eight-inch drainage pipe will carry off the refuse from some ten or a dozen other eight-inch pipes. I am also at a loss to understand how one eight-inch pipe at the foot of First street can carry away the sewage and rains of two twelve-inch pipes that hitherto existed and then overflowed. I am at a loss to understand how the sewerage is to be emptied into the river when the back water fills the mouth of the disposal pipe near the fall.

Just Information. I am informed by a gentleman who is proficient in these matters, that the city will rule the day when it lays eight-inch pipes down Milwaukee street. The gentleman who I refer to has had contracts which have laid miles and miles of sewers in many of the cities of the country and he says that within five years at the most we will have to tear up our present system and replace it with larger pipes. This has been the experience of Beaver Dam or Baraboo, I am not sure which, but an investigation will show, and neither of these cities are as large as Janesville. Take for example the sewer on Park Place. It runs from near Harrison street to Bluff street. Then turns over on Bluff street to Milwaukee. Eight-inch pipes all of it. It keeps increasing the volume of waste material all the way down the hill and stops in a manhole and cess pool on Bluff street. Then it joins with the sewer along Bluff street and empties into an eight-inch sewer on Milwaukee street.

More Information. Meanwhile the Milwaukee street sewer has come from up Milwaukee avenue. Ultimately it will have the sewage from Milton avenue, East street, Wisconsin street and the private sewers from residences going down its line. It empties into the Bluff street sewer. Something has got to happen. You cannot pack two pounds of cotton into a one-pound bale, you more can you pack ten or a dozen eight-inch sewers into one eight-inch sewer. The same gentleman I referred to above and I can assure my readers he knows what he is talking about, says that at the least the Milwaukee street sewer should have fifteen-inch pipes and the cross streets like Bluff street and Milton avenue and Milwaukee street twelve-inch pipes. If this statement is correct something should be done at once before it is too late. We should not be forced to spend forty thousand dollars for work that in five years we will have to pull up and replace at even greater expense. Even if the present expense is more we should look to the future and not be stingy on small details.

More Suggestions. These are mere suggestions. I do not pretend to be a consulting engineer or a city financier. I only state facts as they look to me. I do not mean to tear the mask off any legitimate dealings, but such dealings should have no mask. Everything should be clear and above board. In laying the foundation for a city sewerage system I should have suggested that an expert be hired for the work rather than have depended upon local work with practically no experience. Money spent in this direction would not be money wasted. Sewers cannot be laid according to book but the natural elements must be taken into consideration.

"OLD FOGY."

Town Talk

He was quite proud of the manner in which he "did" those exposition sharpeners and secured a nice rest in a cushion chair free gratis. The venerable Janesville insurance man told his friends at the boarding house all about it after his return from St. Louis and the narrative was related with keen relish. Weariness of standing on his feet and gazing at the exhibits had come upon him, but the only chairs in sight had straps stretched between the arms or prohibitive signs denying relief. He was just wondering what he was doing to do about it when he chanced upon one of those eye-fitting booths with which every building at the great fair seems to be honeycombed. The Janesville insurance man it seems had always "had it in" for the eye-fitting craft anyway—deeming them highway robbers or little less—so his conscience did not trouble him. He allowed the industrious optical plumbers to work over him for a half an hour or more, jolting comfortably in the chair. Then when he had rested sufficiently, he rose to go saying that he had been shown nothing better than the spectacles he already had and could not tarry longer. He adjusted his gold-bowed ones he had, then farewell quite briefly. Now the day after the worthy insurance man boasted of beating those exposition sharpeners he discovered something. In his sudden chagrin he spoke right out loud in the hearing of others. Those pet gold-bowed spectacles that had been adjusted so carefully on leaving that booth were not the spectacles he had taken with him from Janesville. No, indeed. They were not gold at all, but cross metal—brass.

OUR VISITORS AT MANY EXHIBITS

Interesting and Gossipy Letter From St. Louis—New Jersey Exhibit.

St. Louis, Sept. 28.—Seeing so many New Jersey mosquitoes, lobsters, marine worms, Dungeness crabs from Seattle and pink salmon eggs from the Columbia river, has given me a "creepy" feeling and made me so nervous I can't sleep. But John has his mind set on the mosquito exhibit and we had to see it and as a consequence I am seized with an irresistible impulse to "swat" something every time I hear a buzzing sound. But the mosquito display was interesting after all. We found it in the Forestry and Fisheries building and also found much to our surprise that this was one of the most interesting and instructive buildings at the fair. The exhibit is not intended to convey the impression that mosquitoes are New Jersey's only product. If my memory serve me right New Jersey also produces a good brand of lightning, at least I have often heard "New Jersey lightning" referred to as being something awful rapid. But the lightning is not on exhibition here. The mosquito exhibit is the work of the New Jersey experiment station and is intended to show the methods that have been put into operation for exterminating the pest. There are millions of mosquitoes in bottles and pinned to cards, ring-legged salt marsh mosquitoes, dapple-winged mosquitoes, pitcher-plant mosquitoes, common house mosquitoes, woodland mosquitoes, enough to make blisters on the face of common humanity. There were large charts showing the mosquito's digestive system, also a cross-section of his lancet, or "proboscis," a foot long. There was a large picture of a mosquito "in the act of biting."

"I hope you notice that is a female mosquito," said John. "The male mosquito is as harmless as a Scotch Collie dog. He never bites any one." By this time I was inspecting the salmon hatchery which showed the entire process of hatching the Columbia River Chinook salmon from pink eggs about the size of peas. Steel baskets were sunk in running water showing the stages of development from the larvae to the five minnows. An interesting feature of the salmon exhibit was the miniature cannery factory of the Alaska association. In this building we saw Dungeness crabs and all sorts of marine life from the state of Washington, marine worms and deep sea reptiles by the biological association of the United Kingdom, and all varieties of growing oysters and clams. The oysters in the Virginia exhibit taxed John's credulity so heavily that he pulled a measuring rule from his pocket and asked the privilege of measuring one of the bivalves. Like all men John has the "measuring habit." He wanted to measure the great picture by Rembrandt, "The Night Watch," brought here by Holland and exhibited in the Rembrandt house, and it was with great difficulty that I restrained him. But permission to measure the oyster was readily granted and we found it measured just eight and one-half inches across the shell. What a glorious boon one of these Virginia oysters would be to a "Church Sociable!" Half the oyster could be used for soup and the rest served in steaks or omelets.

Here we saw specimens of animals and woods indigenous to every state as well as exhibits from Japan, Germany and South American countries. Here are Georgia and Oregon white pine, Montana spruce and cottonwood, California redwood, cherry, birch, ash, white cedar, and a thousand other varieties of woods native to American soil.

Cement a Very Popular Building Material—New Fire Station Finished by January First.

That Spring Brook is the most rapidly growing portion of Janesville is a positive fact and that this part is the future manufacturing section of southern Wisconsin is the prediction of many a wise prophet. Though it is unusually quiet at the present time, the ring of preparation and the ring of the carpenter's hammer tells that it will not be long before there will be not a day passed when some large shipment or record breaking production is made. Fancy furniture for the homes of the middle and extreme west, shades for the porches where man spends his leisure time, canned corn and sour kraut for the boarding houses, hotels and restaurants, pickles for everybody, beet sugar for fancy and cooking purposes, cement posts for hitching, for mile signs on railroads and for fences, and hollow cement blocks that can be used for any purpose that stone can be used, are the varied products of a thriving district of a prosperous city. The cannery factory alone is no small boon to Janesville for it brings to the city farmers from all over the county, some of whom would trade elsewhere were it not that they can dispose of their products here. The same is true of the beet sugar plant—more so for it brings just as many and from more remote corners of this section—farmers who are treated well here will advertise the town in the district in which they live. But this is but one phase of the good that Janesville derives from this manufacturing center; hundreds of men are employed here the year around and the large class who make a practice of working in tobacco in the winter months and in the field in the spring and summer can find employment in the cannery factory from the first of September till Christmas and in the beet factory from October to April. There is also a tobacco warehouse in the vicinity of Athletic park where a goodly sized force is busied handling the crop in the winter and spring months. Houses are being built and a new fire station for the protection of all this comparatively new suburb is now in the building.

Furniture Factory

At the Choate-Hollister Furniture factory sixty men and two boys are busied cutting from the fancy and substantial lumbers, putting together and finishing library and extension tables that are sold throughout the middle and extreme west. The factory runs steadily and with full force the year around and after Christmas in January and February when business in all lines is slack and few orders are being filled all the tables manufactured are put in stock for reserve during the rush season.

Sand to Milwaukee

The Silica-Cement Brick corporation which is planning to move its Milwaukee plant to this city is having taken from the sand-hills at the foot of South Main street four carloads of sand daily to be used in the new and popular kind of building material. The sand is loaded into the cars at the intersection of the Emerald Grove road at the spur track to the cement post factory by two teams for hauling and four men who transfer the sand from the hills to the wagons and from the wagons to the cars.

Hollow Cement Blocks

At the sheds where the hollow cement blocks are made which so suddenly made their debut in the building interests a short time ago and which are now being used extensively in the city and all over the country for all kinds of buildings and foundations, great piles of these are to be seen against a background of sand as if they had just been quarried and cut. The force of men has been decreased lately on account of the approach of winter and the natural lull in the building trade. There are but four men employed in the sheds at the present time.

Cement Posts

The use of cement posts for hitching, fences, and mile signs on railroads is another practical divergence from the use of wood. These posts are made on wire under a great pressure and are able to stand a great amount of wear and tear, although they are not as elastic as cedar posts. The factory at the present is not running there being a large stock of all styles on hand.

Canning Corn

Now corn is being hauled to the cannery factory at the rate of a hundred and fifty loads a day. Cucumbers for pickling are also coming in but not in such large quantities. The cabbage department is not running, the regular crop not yet having been harvested. The work of handling the corn is being done by about two hundred and twenty-five hands, men and women. Without a doubt the factory will be running steadily from now until Christmas.

Porch Shades

Porch shades are of no use in winter and their manufacture at the present is suspended. A few orders are now being filled and a little repair work being done, but the force is by no means as large as when running. The regular orders for next year's stock will be the next work at this factory.

Carpenters at Work

Spring brook is also becoming one of the large resident district of the city. On the James place Mr. White is building a new two story house that will be done before the snow flies this year. Paul Gehrkke is superintending the building of a flat on Jerome avenue that will be steam heated and have the city water. The new fire station has been taken from the ground and Chief Klein says it will be completed and the company will be ready to run to fire on the first day of January 1905. There will be but one team and three men there at first but the building is three feet deeper than the east side station. On account of the number of times that the wagons in answering calls strike the jambs of the doors the door of the new station is three feet wider than those in the city stations, which are nine feet.

BUYERS ARE TAKING LITTLE TOBACCO NOW

Are Riding Around the Country at Present—Danger of Shed Damage Last Few Days.

At the close of the week the tobacco growing districts of the state have been visited frequently by the buyers looking over the general status of the crop and drawing up and signing contracts for it. All the selling and buying is done quietly and no competition is manifest. Several hundred acres scattered over a wide range of territory have doubtless been sold during the last week but the prices are low and the growers are too over-anxious to make any sales. A great deal of the crop is being examined and some large sales of that crop have been reported although the prices were not good that the seller would make any good profit from the deal.

With the time for housing this year's crop comes the warmest weather of the season, which is cause of considerable uneasiness for the fear that these conditions might lead to shed damage. The last few days of hot, muggy atmosphere have made it necessary to look after the ventilation of the curing sheds with the greatest of care.

The Edgerton Tobacco Reporter in speaking of the Janesville market, says:

Sampling seems to be the leading occupation among the dealers at present and those thus engaged are: Samuel Grundy, 700cs; R. L. Erier, 250cs; J. B. Dearborn, 125cs of 1902, and S. Soverhill, 1,700 cs of 1903.

John Soultan sold 438cs of 1903 and 66cs of 1901; L. B. Carlo & Son, 100cs of 1903. T. B. Earle of Edgerton, shipped a two-car load of 1902 goods from the S. B. Hollister packing. Mr. Hollister a car of stemmed tobacco exported to far distant lands.

Chas. Rockwell, exclusive leaf dealer of St. Louis, Monroe Friedman, senior member of Friedman & Co., Chicago; T. B. Earle and Chas. Tallard, of Edgerton, were visitors to this market Tuesday.

LANDSLIDE NEARLY BURIED WORKMEN

Team Also Was Endangered—Were Loading Sand at the Foot of South Main Street.

Two men and a team hardly escaped burial alive yesterday while working in the vicinity of the sand hills at the foot of South Main street. These men are engaged in hauling the sand from the hills to the spur track of the cement post where it is loaded on flat cars to be shipped to the Silica-Cement company in Milwaukee. This continual hauling away has caused the sides of the hills to become very steep and yesterday afternoon about five o'clock while loading a wagon the sand started to come down in a landslide. The wagon was buried and the team had to be unhitched and the wagon shoveled out.

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vitamins may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate dandruff and stop falling hair? No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla, from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Julia Gray in "Her Only Sin" at My- ers Grand, Tuesday Night

Among those most recently to at- tract serious critical comment in the- atrical stellar ranks, is Julia Gray— unlike many of her sisters—her time of novitiate has not been long, nor filled with unpleasant vicissitudes and monotonous drudgery; things which leave their inevitable imprint, and which prevent many of our most fa- vorable actresses from longer creat- ing the youthful illusion so necessary to heroines of stage romance. She has, indeed, leaped at almost a single bound into the charmed circle where one's title to greatness is proclaimed at the top of programs and emblaz- oned in capitals on the bill boards. Given the necessary talent it usually takes years of careful training and the prodigious expenditures of money and brains to make possible and in- sure the success of the modern star. Miss Gray has committed the unpar- donable sin of having violated all these established theatrical canons. And in this, her initial starring tour, has broken down all barriers of carping criticism customarily placed in the path of new and untitled aspirants. The five or six years in prepara- tion for her present essay were spent in study abroad, chiefly in England, where under a nom de theatre, she gained invaluable experience in support of several of the more noted London actor-managers. "She comes to her present work with all the enthusiasm of youth, and the added charm of a brilliant and fas- cinating beauty. She is doubly for- tunate in that her career as a star is being launched under the astute and watchful eye of Lincoln J. Car- ter, one of the most experienced and successful of American managers. In a play from his own pen, "Her Only Sin," he has provided her with a "Very well," replied Peter, "I'll give you a pass down below. You can look around there and if you don't like it you can come back and I'll see what I can do for you here."

"That suits me," said I, taking the pass, which got me through the gates at the other place. After investigation I returned to the vicinity of St. Peter, who saw me coming:

"Hello!" said the salubrious gate- keeper, "I'm glad to see you're back again."

"You're not seeing my back," said I, "for I don't intend to turn it on you again—I've decided to come here and locate."

"That's good," said Peter, "but what made you decide to stop here? Show business is far better in the other place. Don't you like the com- pany down below?"

"O, yes," said I, "the company is fine—but there isn't an nabesman cur- tain in the whole blamed place."

"I hardly know," said I, "I've al- ways understood that heaven was a fine place, yet I don't want to de- cide until I see both places."

Uninsensible and taken to Dr. Trent's office where he lay all night. His injuries are very serious though we learn not fatal.

Going to Milwaukee.—The Wiscon- sin says: "Professor Towne, of Janesville, who has delighted our Milwaukee audiences on several oc- casions, is about to remove to Mil-waukee, for the purpose of practic- ing his profession. He will be an important acquisition to our musical talent."

Christ Church.—The annual rent- ing of ships in the Christ church will take place Oct. 3d. Wardens and secretary will be in attendance at 10 o'clock a. m. The presence of all who wish sittings is earnestly re- quested.

The Reverend William Delos Howe of Milwaukee, will preach at the First Congregational church tomor- row morning and evening.

THE LATEST IN SHOES

Results of Years of Experience in Shoe Designing and Perfecting Methods of Manufacture.

"Honorabilia" and "Western Lady" are the names of two new shoes which are conceded to reach the height of perfection in shoe making.

The successful originator of these shoes is the F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co., of Milwaukee, Wis. This name will be sufficient to assure most of our readers of the quality of these goods. A great many are already familiar with the high standing and good wearing features of Mayer shoes, while thousands have been impressed by the straight forward, persistent advertising done by this firm in all the principal publications throughout the country.

Mayer shoes have a high standing among shoe dealers and are recom- mended by them as giving the great- est satisfaction of any shoes in the market. The new shoes will surpass in style, fit and durability anything the Mayer Boot & Shoe Co. has ever placed on the market.

The "Honorabilia" for men is that substantial, nobby and, fashionable that every man who is at all desirous of being well dressed will search for. Made in a variety of designs, for ex- clusive business or dress wear, or as appropriate for all uses, it has fea- tures that appeal to every man.

The "Western Lady" for women will quickly become recognized as the most proper shoe for ladies as it embodies all that appeals to a woman when she seeks the ideal shoe for her use. Made from the softest, select upper leathers and the most flex- ible and durable sole leathers, they are endowed with wearing and com- fort qualities.

If your dealer does not happen to have the "Honorabilia" or "Western Lady" shoes to show you write the F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co., Milwau- kee, Wis., and they will inform you where to get them.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

A story is told of a gentleman who said to a lady one night at a party,
"Do you know that my wife in that new gown is the handsomest woman in the room?"

The lady was surprised at the remark, because the man who expressed admiration for his wife so freely was one of those cold-blooded men, destitute of sentiment and not given to flattery.

She confirmed his opinion by saying:

"Yes, your wife is a handsome woman and never looked better than she does tonight."

A few days later the two ladies met and the wife was advised of the compliment bestowed by her husband. With a blush of pleasure on her cheeks she said, "Did John say that?" and then becoming confidential, she continued:

"Do you know that that is the first compliment John has paid me, or the first time he has noticed my costume, since we were married thirty-five years ago?"

"Well," replied her friend, "your husband is not a gusher and not much given to sentiment, but he is a good provider and everybody likes him. You have a good home and ought to be happy."

"I'm not complaining," said the wife, "but I was just thinking."

There are plenty of homes of this class, where the wife, who is growing old under the weight of care, with nothing to complain of, so far as comforts and many luxuries are concerned, but who now and then may be discovered with a look of sadness in her eyes, "just thinking."

The preface is too sacred for intrusion, for it takes in the years from girlhood and the experience of a life which has been so monotonous as to attract but little attention and yet so full of import as to be all absorbing.

The picture gallery which is never opened to inquisitive gaze, calls back to memory the summer so long ago when as a bride she stood in the floral arch and gave her hand in the bonds of holy wedlock.

The man to whom she pledged her truth had been profuse in compliments and had frequently assured her that she was the only girl in the universe for him.

The home to which he had taken her was ideal in appointment, and as they became acquainted with each other she discovered that he was the same manly man that had first won her admiration, and he was not disappointed in the wife who had come to share his home and life.

A feeling of comradeship developed and as the years went by and children came to bless the home, her cup of happiness was complete.
She turns away from these first years to the next decade and discovers that the same current of joy runs through it, but notices that it is tinged with alloy, which was scarcely perceptible at the time.

The same home, the same children, the same husband and yet not just the same, for many of the little thoughtful attentions are missed and the cares of business have crowded out some of the things which she prized most highly, and while John has lost nothing from his stock of manhood in the maturing processes of middle life, yet there is something lacking.

The cheery "good-bye" in the morning and the kiss of welcome in the evening are memories of earlier days, and she recalls them with a blush of pleasure and a quiet sigh.
No word of complaint is offered.
The realm is too sacred to be entered and so she is "just thinking."

Ten years later the children are gone and she and John are where they started. The same home, the same fire, the same two people, and yet not the same, for the traces of time have changed the landscape, and the fountain of youth no longer lights up the eye and dimples the cheek.

The mirror reveals a face that is wrinkled and a form that is portly, and the routine of every day life has taken on the monotony of business in large degree.

The wear and tear of business has transformed the John of earlier years and while she presides at his board and keeps his home with old time regularity, yet somehow she feels that she hardly knows him, and if perchance he should call her by the old endearing name, surprise would cause her to look up to see who he was addressing.

There was a time when he knew the difference between a silk dress and a top-cent calico and when he used to put his arm around her and tell her how nice she looked, but that was so long ago that it only lingers as a pleasant memory.

She is "just thinking" and she wonders what has wrought the change. Is she just the same herself. There was a time when she used to dress for John the same as she would for company. Why not?
He was the best company she ever had, but that was back in the years when he noticed such things. Perhaps she could call him back. It was five o'clock. He would be home in an hour. She dresses for the occasion and meets him at the door with a pleasant greeting and when he says "hello, Mary, how nice you look," and puts his arm around her,
the roses come back to her cheeks,
and old time happiness fills her heart.

What was the matter with those two people who had trued along so many years together? Nothing, except that the finer sensibilities had been blunted, until sentiment had come to be regarded as a relic of the past and too foolish to command the respect and attention of mature age. A mistaken notion, yet one that is all too frequently entertained.

If there is ever a time in the life of any home when love and appreciation should be felt and expressed, it is when the twilight approaches and when the years go hurrying by like a mill race.

Happy the people who are permitted to enter this golden age with facilities unimpaired, traveling down to the verge of time together. Society may not find a place for them, and the busy activities of life may set too rapid a pace, but the home knows no ostracism, and it should be in fact, as well as in name, a haven of rest.

An old man stood at an office desk
the other day relating the experiences of a long and eventful life. He had been a resident of the county for 60 years and for more than half a century had lived on the farm which he now occupies. His children had long been out in life for themselves, and his old neighbors were dead.

He was comfortably provided with worldly goods, but the loneliness of age oppressed him, and when he said, "My wife and I want to live to celebrate our golden wedding next January and then we want to die," it was a pathetic reminder of the borrowed time prophecy.

Some people have a notion that they would like to live to the age of the old patriarchs of Bible times, forgetful of the fact that fifty years today represents more than several centuries in the early days, and that a home with one companion is more of a home than Solomon in all his glory ever enjoyed.

This is the best century that the world has ever known and every home that enjoys it should be an ideal home down to the severing of the last tie that holds the home together.

PRESS COMMENT

La Crosse Chronicle: The governor's auto is like his platform—he uses it when it happens to be in accordance with the conditions.

Madison Journal: That was a lively bunch which Senator Quarles admitted to Messrs. Stevens and La Follette at Kenosha yesterday.

Scranton Tribune: Under all circumstances Mr. Taggart should be given credit for remarkable powers in facial control in his pose as the "Sunny Jim" of democracy.

Racine Journal: W. E. Curtis, the well known writer, complains of the vastness of the St. Louis fair, saying it invites weariness to try to see the sights. It really is the biggest affair the country ever had.

Evansville Review: If any one has a sure death on mice, we want the recipe at this office, and want it at once. We did not mind when the little cusses jacked the imposing stones, the pastepot or samples of copy, but when it will tackle some of our copy and chew it up we can not understand how they live after it.

Edgerton Eagle: The canine population of Edgerton according to official statistics garnered by Marshal Campbell last week is 114, without regard to race, color or previous conditions of servitude. Of this number, sixty have a license to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, according to City Clerk Johnson's computation. The other fifty-four seem in no great fear of anyone except an alderman.

Appleton Crescent: Governor Plagreed's every act was for the betterment of the state of Michigan.
Every administration bill had the support of the people of the state.
Governor La Follette's every act is for the betterment of his political self, to place himself in a position where he can look down on the state of Wisconsin and say, "It's mine, I am king, judge and coroner of it."
It does as I say and not one of the subjects dares to oppose me."

La Crosse Leader-Press: Lincoln Stevens has not contented himself with endorsing the progressive measures of which Governor La Follette has been the most active advocate in Wisconsin; he has endorsed the methods of the governor in every respect, and makes a severe attack on the conservative republicans who do not favor the La Follette policies.
Hence it is not strange that the Milwaukee Sentinel refers to the Stefens article as a "mixture of truth and falsehood," "deliberate viciousness," "a deliberate insult to the people of Washington," "a reflection upon a great state," "a direct conflict with historical facts," "a false slandering of a selfish political bushwhacker," and as "designed to expose the conspiracy by which La Follette hopes to extend his despotic authority."

Milwaukee News: Mr. La Fol-lette's "mutilation" with the railways in 1900 showed his place in the "system" quite clearly. Later it is quite true, there was a falling out between La Follette and the railways, but it should be remembered that Matthew Stanley Quay up to the time of his death was at war with one or the other of the great railway systems of Pennsylvania.
Yet Quay was one of the principal exponents of the "system." Mr.
La Follette is representative of the lumber interests. Two of his principal supporters are Isaac Stephenson and W. D. Connor, who control great lumber interests in the northwest.

He has other lumber millionaires back of him. Lumber has played a conspicuous part in the "system."
But La Follette is at war with railway interests. That seems to blind Mr. Stevens, as it does thousands of clear-sighted men in Wisconsin, to his other faults—to his place in the "system." Because he has had a row with railway interests failing to control appointment of their lobbysts, it is held that he is trying to smash the "system."

TRICKS EXPLAINED

Clairvoyants, etc., require callers to write their questions and names for the very purpose of finding out by a trick the names of their patrons and what they want to know—they generally say concentrate, think of what you wrote—but like the sharper with the shell game they cannot be caught at their tricks by those unaware of such unfair methods. It is always a trick even without touching the writing, sealed or unsealed, burning.
The writing tricks enable unscrupulous persons with little or no psychic power whatever to impose upon the public and discredit the profession.

NO DECISION HAS BEEN GIVEN YET

SUPREME COURT ADJOURNS UNTIL OCTOBER 18.

JFFRIS IS WELL RECEIVED

Quarles is On The Stump for Some Time To Come—Other State Gossip.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 1.—No decision in the much mooted election case has been handed down. After four days of anxiety the leaders of both the republican and the La Follette factions have settled down to the same condition of affairs that existed before the case was brought to the notice of the court. The ticket headed by Cook is the recognized republican ticket of Wisconsin under the rulings of the national republican convention but under the interpretation of the state laws by Secretary Houser he can now go ahead and place the La Follette ticket under the caption republican, in the Roosevelt and La Follette column. However, while the court has officially adjourned until October 18 there is no law that could stop their assembling anytime, previous to that date and handing down a decision in this case. However, this has not been customary in the Wisconsin supreme court and the probabilities are that no decision will be given until October 18th.

The situation therefore, is that the secretary of state shall proceed with all the necessary preparations for the certification of the official ballot. This he is required to do not later than twenty days prior to the day of the election. Oct. 19 is twenty days prior to election and the limit for the certification of the nominees by the secretary of state, Gavney lost.

Through his own actions State Senator Gavney was defeated for re-nomination in his district yesterday. It was Senator Gavney's own wish that the conventions be held at this time and he has suffered in consequence. La Follette has triumphed there as he has in Kenosha county through the hard work he has been doing while his opponents waited for the supreme court decision. All summer long the governor and his staff have been hard at work on state politics. His state central committee has been in the field for many months with active work. So active has been his work that it is stated he has had considerable trouble with his eyes and at several of his meetings has been forced to speak from a darkened stage.

Well Received
M. G. Jeffris again made a decided hit in the northern neck of Wisconsin. At Antigo he was received by an enthusiastic audience. He took up in detail the acts of the governor in the mismanagement of state affairs and argued point by point the claims of the republicans. Senator Quarles also realized the situation now and for ten days to come will be a very busy man. He speaks at Monroe this afternoon. Brodhead Monday night and Wednesday night he speaks at Racine. La Follette is having trouble with his red devil. This gift of his game, warlike and admirers has balked on several important occasions and last night it caused him to miss his engagement at Neenah.

Democratic Stand
In a speech delivered at Madison recently Burr W. Jones, a leading democrat, fearfully arraigned Governor La Follette and his methods. Mr. Jones is the democrat who years ago defeated the governor when he ran for congress for a second time. He is a conservative, clear-headed leader and his words will have great effect in Madison and Dane county. George Lewis, the secretary of the democratic state central committee, is authority for the statement that the governor has lost the support of his former "fair minded" democrats. They were ready to vote for him at the caucuses but this fall they see a way to gain their own ends and they are flocking back to the support of Peck by the thousands.

Held Many Offices
In politics Mr. Croft was a democrat. He was school commissioner for two years, alderman from the First ward for a similar period, and in the spring of 1882 he succeeded the late A. J. Lovey as mayor of the city. After that he was again elected to the council and served as president for three years. During his administration as mayor the city charter was revised and perfected. He took an active interest in the fire department and served as chief engineer for one year.

Organized the Guards
Besides being one of the charter members who instituted the W. H. Sargent G. A. R. post, he was a member of Oriental Lodge No. 22 of the Knights of Pythias, and one of the prime movers in the organization of the Janesville Guards, being the first captain chosen by that body. A life shown with such activity as has been shown in this brief sketch tells its own story. To say that he was a good and true man, a patriotic and enterprising citizen, is only to say what all know. It is known what funeral arrangements will be made. The body will be sent here for burial and will probably arrive tomorrow. It will be remembered that James Croft, a brother of the deceased, who had been agent for the St. Paul road in Beloit died suddenly of the same terrible malady only a few months ago.

Go-to-Church Band: This unique organization, connected with the Baptist church, consists of boys and girls who engage to attend church Sunday morning. Each member receives a card that is punched at the door. Some special sermons are preached to the band. Over one hundred members are enrolled this year, and their sessions begin tomorrow morning.

Excavating Work Has Been Commenced—Building Will Be Frame Structure—Make Wire Fencing.

Excavating work for the new Taylor & Lowell factory on River street has been commenced. The structure is to be reared on the land adjoining the Spoon elevator and will be a one-story frame building sixty-four feet square, the plans being drawn by Architect Hilton. Wire-fencing and similar products will be manufactured. In the spring, when the concern will come into the possession of land now occupied by the Jeffris Lumber Co., it is probable that the factory will be enlarged.

DEATH SUMMONED THOMAS T. CROFT

PASSED AWAY SUDDENLY AT WASHINGTON LAST EVENING.

VARIED AND USEFUL CAREER

Served with Distinction in the Civil War and Held Many Positions of Honor in This City.

Thomas T. Croft, for many years one of the foremost citizens of Janesville, died suddenly of heart disease at Washington, D. C., at eleven o'clock last evening. A telegram sent by Dr. G. D. P. Bailey, the attending physician, to Horace McElroy of this city was not delivered until this morning. Upon Mrs. McElroy devolved the task of breaking the sad tidings to his sisters, the Misses Ella and Lillie Croft, the only near-relatives surviving him. Miss Lillie Croft has been in ill health for some time.

In War Department
Mr. Croft was appointed as clerk in the war department during Cleveland's administration and has since served in the subdepartments of justice and pensions. He proved a most useful man in the service as, owing to his varied experience, he was able to quickly adapt himself to almost any form of work whenever the exigency arose.

Born in England
Deceased was born in York, England, August 6, 1841, and was a son of Joseph L. and Ann Theakstone Croft. He came to America with his parents in infancy and when ten months old took up his residence in Janesville. Four and a half years of his life had been spent as a druggist's clerk when he enlisted for service in the Civil war on the 7th day of August, 1862, as a private of the 12th Wisconsin Battery of Light Artillery.

Record in the War
He was one of the sixty recruited in this city by Lieut. E. G. Harlow. Among the survivors of that battery who bore arms with the subject of this sketch, are W. J. McIntyre, C. S. Jackson, James Croft, a cousin, Jerome Howard, John Matthews and E. G. Harlow. Mr. Croft served with distinction in the war and was promoted to orderly sergeant. He was in the battles of luka, Corinth, Champion Hill, Jackson, Miss., and the forty-nine days' siege of Vicksburg. In the battle of Raymond he was also engaged and at Missionary Ridge, Atlanta, Pass, Savannah, and Bentonville, Ga. After the march to the sea he was made ordnance sergeant in charge of the arsenal at Savannah. In May, 1865, after the close of the war, he was mustered out of the service.

Varied Business Life
Returning from the army, he was in charge of a drugstore for a short time but in April, 1866, went to San Francisco where he was engaged in the drug business for two years. Subsequently he returned to this city and became identified with the drug firm of Croft & Smith which later became Croft & Curtis. Later he became chief clerk in the car building department of the Union Pacific railroad at Omaha. After three years he returned to this city and went on the road as a salesman for Harrison & Judd. After that he traveled for the Janesville Machine Co. He was again interested in the drug business with Frank Sherer and Ed. V. Whitcomb in 1876 and 1880. About the same time he joined with Messrs. Hanchett & Shelton, S. C. Cobb, and Wm. W. Willis in the manufacture of buggy spring gears. Having closed out his interest in 1881, he accepted the agency of the St. Paul railroad, and continually serving in that capacity until he was made superintendent of the Janesville Water Co. in 1887. In 1891 and 1892 he was county clerk and after completing his second term accepted the appointment at Washington.

"BUSTER BROWN" AND CO. PLEASED

Production Replete with Good Spectacles and Brilliant Costumes Held Boards at the Myers.

"Buster Brown" with his comical dog "Tige," his quaint resolutions, and his company of dancing girls and compelees, continued an audience which should have been larger at the Myers theatre last evening. Some of the vaudeville was high class, particularly the song and dance act of Burt Jordan and Rosa Crouch, and the pony ballet and Scottish fusleers' drirk of the sixteen choruses girls. The variety and beauty of the costumes, worn by the latter, contingent as well as their individual grace and sprightliness and the snap and ginger they put into all their work, delighted everyone. Come supplement "heroes," being more or less impossible, are always difficult to reproduce with any resemblance on the stage and it is even more difficult to weave their adventures together in any sort of a plot. No serious attempt along this line seems to have been made by the "dramatist" who framed up "Buster Brown." Master Giovanni who played the title-role is said to be twenty-one years old. In everything but voice he fitted admirably into the small boy's part. The musical ensemble and the individual vocalists were good. The dog "Tige," played by Jack Bell, was almost as funny as "The Wizard of Oz" lion.

FIRST HALF WAS ONLY TWO ZEROS

WHITEWATER AND JANESVILLE CONTESTING FOR HONORS.

A LARGE CROWD IS PRESENT

Neither Side Able to Score in the First Half—Good Playing.

Whitewater and Janesville are today fighting for supremacy on the gridiron. At the end of the first half the score was nothing to nothing. Whitewater kicked off to Janesville; Caldwell caught the ball and the game was on. Twice Whitewater forced the ball within one yard of the Janesville goal line and twice they were held for downs. Caldwell, Senett, Carle and Wright are doing the good work for Janesville and Steer for Whitewater.

This afternoon's game with the Whitewater normals will give the enthusiasts a good line on the Janesville players' form. Last week they were defeated by this same team by a score of sixteen to six but they should do much better today. The Whitewater team, rosters, mascot, and manager arrived this morning at 10:25. They emitted a few preliminary whoops to announce their arrival, made a football rush for the hotel bus and drove off to the hotel yelling like mad. From looks they do not seem to be ten pounds heavier than our boys but perhaps they are. They have games scheduled with Oshkosh normal DeKalb, Illinois, normal, Northwestern university of Waterville, and Marquette college of Milwaukee. They are a husky looking lot of players and if lung-power counts for anything can play good ball. The teams lined up as follows:

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Company

"All the same I wish I had told Quex."

"Well, then, tell him if you like,"
said George, vexed with this perturbity.

"But you asked me not to."

"Only because I fear, with your weak nature, that one question will lead to another until the whole of my private affairs will come to light. I don't want those to be known at Scotland Yard, let alone the chance that I might be accused of the crime."

"Oh, that's ridiculous! You could not have left the sitting room unless I had let you out, and there is no door from your bedroom."

"That is true enough," answered Brendon, with an ironical smile, the significance of which was lost on Train.
"But if the whole of my story came to light you might be accused of helping me to get rid of the woman."

"If Leonard's half almost rose on end. 'How could I be mixed up in it?'"

"Well, see here," argued Brendon, who thought it just as well to make Train's own safety depend upon the discretion of too free a tongue. "I tell you about this house, and on my recommendation you come here. I come to stop with you and reveal my reasons for coming. These have to do with the possession of a secret by the murdered woman. All that to a policeman would be suspicious. What would be easier than for me to go down the stairs and, when the woman refused to confess as to my legitimacy, to stab her? Then I could return to my bed, and you could prove an alibi on my behalf by your tale of having locked the sitting room door."

Train shuddered. "I see how easily we can get into trouble. I shall say nothing. I wish I had not come here.
I shall go abroad until all blows over."
"I am going to see Dorothy," said Brendon, "and tell her that there is no chance of our marriage. Nor is there for I cannot see my way to prove my legitimacy. We must part, and I shall probably go down the country for six months or so to finish my novel and to get rid of my heartache."

Train remained silent, looking at the ground. Then he glanced at his friend in a doubtful way. "What has become of your yellow holly?"

Brendon produced it from his pocket.
"It withered, so I took it out of my coat and put it into this envelope."

"Do you know if Miss Ward gave any one else a piece of yellow holly?"

Brendon stared at this strange question. "Not to my knowledge. Why do you ask?"

Train shuffled his feet and looked down again. "It is an exceptionally rare sort of thing," he said uncertainly, "and its effect on Mrs. Jersey was strange that I wondered if she connected it with any trouble or disaster."

"You made the same remark before," said Brendon dryly, "and we could arrive at no conclusion. But, in any case, I don't see that Miss Ward giving me the holly has anything to do with Mrs.
Jersey's alarm—if, indeed, she was alarmed."

"I think she was," said Train decisively, "and if I were you I would ask Miss Ward why she gave you the holly."

"What would be the sense in that?"
"You might learn why Mrs. Jersey was startled."

Brendon laughed and shrugged his shoulders. "Your active brain is building up a perfect romance," he declared.
"There can be no connection between Dorothy and Mrs. Jersey."

"Did she know you were coming to stop here on that night?"

"Yes, I told her so when I met her in the park in the morning. It was then that she asked me to afternoon tea."

"And at the afternoon tea she gave you the holly?"

"Yes. You seem to think she did it on purpose that Mrs. Jersey?"

Train interrupted him quickly. "It is you who are building up a romance."

"Then you do go so far as that," said Brendon, with a shrug. "However, there is nothing more to be said. My advice to you is to hold your tongue lest we should both get into trouble."

The two parted, Leonard to pack up and Brendon to journey with his bag for Kensington. Both men were conscious of a relief when they took leave of each other.

Of course the economy of the mansion was disordered when the crime was committed. But, thanks to the firm handling of Miss Bull, who now took the reins which had fallen from the hands of madame, a few days put a different complexion on affairs. Margery knew where her aunt kept the money, and Miss Bull made several of the boarders behindhand pay up. Thus there was enough money to go on with,
and Miss Bull decided to wait until after the funeral before deciding what she intended to do herself. When Mrs.
Jersey was buried her lawyer made his appearance with the will. It was read to Margery, and Miss Bull stopped beside the poor girl as the only friend she had in the world. The will was short and concise, as it seemed that there was very little to leave. The lawyer read it and then looked at Margery to hear what she had to say.

"You do exactly what you like, dear Miss Bull," said Margery, rising, and then turned to the lawyer. "Let Miss Bull do exactly as she likes. I leave all in her hands."

"The most sensible thing you can do," said the legal adviser under his breath, and when Margery had left the room he turned to the old maid.
"Is she an idiot?"

"If you mean, but she is not very clever. I have taken a great interest in her, as, to tell you the truth, Mr.
James, she was badly treated by her aunt."

"It is lucky she has such a friend," said Mr. James. "About this will," said Miss Bull, laying one thin finger on the document.
"Madame leaves to Margery Watson, her niece, the money in the green box in her sitting room and also her Jewels."

"Yes. Also, if you will recollect, the clothes of the deceased lady."

"Is there nothing else?" asked Miss Bull, raising her black eyes inquiring-
ly. "What of the lease of this house?"

"That is the property of Lord Derrington, and he only let the house to Mrs. Jersey by the year."

"Very strange. But the whole connection of Lord Derrington with my late client is strange. I know that she received from him an annuity of £500 a year and the lease of this house—by the year, remember—from December to December. Now she is dead the annuity lapses. The lease ends on the 31st of December, and it will not be renewed. Lord Derrington, so far as I know, has no interest in Miss Margery Watson."

"What interest had he in Mrs. Jersey?" asked Miss Bull, scenting a scandal, and her eyes brightening.

"I can't tell you that, and if I could I would not."

"Quite right. I beg your pardon for asking, but you see, in the interest of that poor girl, I wish to know exactly how matters stand."

"They stand as I tell you," said James, and he rose to go. "I have nothing more to do in the matter, and my connection with the late Mrs. Jersey ceases here."

"One moment," said Miss Bull quietly. "What of the furniture?"

"That is also the property of Lord Derrington. He bought the house as it stood from the executor of the last owner, Mr. Anthony Lockwood, fifteen years ago. Mrs. Jersey wished to set up a boarding house, so Lord Derrington placed her in here. Every stick in the place belongs to him. Should Miss Watson leave, she goes with the Jewels, the money in the green box and with her deceased aunt's clothes."

"A very poor outfit to start life on at her age," said Miss Bull, rising in her prim manner. "By the way, Mr.
James, what is the name of the late Mr. Lockwood's executor?"

"Roger Ireland," replied the lawyer, looking rather surprised. "Why do you ask?"

"For my own satisfaction, Mr. James.
If no one else will assist this poor girl
I shall do so. Good day."

So far as James was personally concerned, he heard no more of the little woman. Miss Bull collected the boarders in the drawing room after dinner and made a speech. She said that it was Margery Watson's intention to keep on the house and that the terms would be as before. If any chose to stop they would be welcome, but those who decided to go could have their bills made out at once. Having thus acted as the mouthpiece of Margery, Miss Bull took the girl away to the sitting room of the late Mrs. Jersey, the very one in which the tragedy had taken place.

"Good child," said Miss Bull, "Lord Derrington is the owner of this house, and he leased it to your aunt by the year—a very strange arrangement, for which there ought to be some explanation. I am going to seek it from Lord Derrington. With regard to the annuity—"

"What annuity?"

"I forgot—you don't know about that.
Well, there is no need that you should.
But it seems that Lord Derrington allowed your late aunt an annuity of £500 a year. I don't know the reason why he did so, and as such reason is not pertinent to matters in hand

now," he said. "I never thought anything of the sort. But I do say that the coincidence is strange—that you should have in your coat a flower—
I suppose one can call herried holly a

I do not wish to know, but the annuity must lapse. It is not likely that Lord Derrington will continue it to you." She paused and looked at the girl.

"Your parents are dead, I believe, Margery?"

"Yes. For many years I have been with my aunt. She was my only relative, dear Miss Bull."

"All the better. I don't want other people interfering," said Miss Bull in her dry way. "Well, Margery, I shall see if I can get Lord Derrington to renew the lease to you, and I shall be your security. With the money in hand—I have counted it, and with that in the bank it amounts to £200—we can continue the boarding house. A few of the boarders will go, but many will remain, as they will not get anywhere so cheap a place. You will be the nominal head of the house, but in reality I shall manage. Do you agree?"

"I am your slave," cried Margery, with melodramatic intensity.

"You are my friend," said Miss Bull, her thin lips relaxing. "I am a lonely woman, Margery, though I still have a surviving sister—her lips lightened again as she said this—and I love you, my dear, for your goodness. Well, we shall keep on the boarding house."

From that moment Miss Bull was in charge of the Amelia square establishment. Whatever means she used to induce Lord Derrington to consent, she certainly managed to get the lease renewed in Margery's name. Some of the boarders went, but others came in their place.

SCOTT'S EMULSION
makes pale, thin children fat and chubby. Overcomes wasting tendencies and brings back rosy cheeks and bright eyes.

It's surprising how quickly children respond to Scott's Emulsion. It contains just the element of nourishment their little bodies need. They thrive on it.

Even a few drops in the baby's bottle have a noticeable effect for good. Nothing better than Scott's Emulsion for growing children.
